FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTS

- Global equities rose in April in US dollar and yen terms, but fell in sterling and euro terms, amid uncertainty over a US tax overhaul.
- Investors sought refuge in safe-haven assets such as gold and the yen, as geopolitical risks escalated in Syria and North Korea. Caution also set in after Federal Reserve minutes revealed that US policymakers were considering reducing asset purchases soon.
- Sentiment was lifted when independent French presidential election candidate Emmanuel Macron won the first round of voting, with far-right Marine Le Pen coming in second.
- Oil prices came under renewed pressure despite several major producers reaching an initial agreement to extend output cuts.
- In April, we introduced Turkish retailer BIM, a market-leading operator with experienced management. We also initiated a position in American wholesaler Costco, which benefits from high levels of operating income.
