FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTS

The Fund is up by 1.29% in March, underperforming the benchmark by 4 bps. YTD, the Fund is up 7.10%, underperforming the benchmark by 69 bps.

Developed markets ended slightly higher after US and Europe banking turmoil stabilized. S&P 500, MSCI Europe and MSCI Japan increased by 3.5%, 2% and 0.6% respectively, in local currency terms. The ECB increased interest rate by 50bps as expected but dropped guidance on future rate hikes. The Fed hiked interest rate by 25bps with moderating inflation and banking turmoil. The US Dollar weakened by 2.3% with Euro and Japanese Yen appreciated by 3.2% and 2.6% respectively. US 10-year bond yield fell to 3.37% at the time of writing.

Manufacturing PMIs are still in contraction although it improved for US and Japan. The drop in Europe Manufacturing PMI was offset by strong Services PMI. Both headline US CPI and PCE continued to moderate with inflation now dominated by shelter costs. However, shelter inflation may eventually come down as rent increases slowed and house prices came under pressure. On the other hand, labor market stays resilient with February non-farm payroll stronger than expected. We are also seeing headline inflation continue to moderate for Europe due to lower Energy prices and labor market stays resilient.

We reduce Europe to Slight OW because of its higher exposure to financial sector and remain Neutral on US and Japan. We maintain our view that inflation should continue to moderate in 2023 and we are moving closer to a pause in central bank interest rate hiking. Lending conditions may continue to tighten due to the stress in the banking sector. This may weigh on economic growth and corporate earnings would come under pressure. Our underlying funds have focused on high quality companies with sustainable earnings growth, which would outperform under a softer global economy. We also keep the commodity ETFs which we expect to benefit from China's economic recovery (categorized under US).

RISKS

All investment carries some form of risks. The potential key risks include but are not limited to the following:

Market risk	Market risk refers to the possibility that an investment will lose value because of a general decline in financial markets, due to economic, political and/or other factors, which will result in a decline in the target fund's NAV.
Stock specific risk	Prices of a particular stock may fluctuate in response to the circumstances affecting individual companies such as adverse financial performance, news of a possible merger or loss of key personnel of a company. Any adverse price movements of such stock will adversely affect the target fund's NAV.
Country risk	Investments of the target fund in any country may be affected by changes in the economic and political climate, restriction on currency repatriation or other developments in the law or regulations of the countries in which the target fund invests. For example, the deteriorating economic condition of such countries may adversely affect the value of the investments undertaken by the target fund in those affected countries. This in turn may cause the NAV of the target fund or prices of units to fall.
Currency risk	As the investments of the target fund may be denominated in currencies other than base currency, any fluctuation in the exchange rate between the base currency and the currencies in which the investments are denominated may have an impact on the value of these investments. You should be aware that if the currencies in which the investments are denominated depreciate against the base currency, this will have an adverse effect on the NAV of the target fund and vice versa. You should note that any gains or losses arising from the fluctuation in the exchange rate may further increase or decrease the returns of the investment.
Fund manager's risk	Since the target fund invests into collective investment scheme managed by another manager, the fund manager has absolute discretion over the fund's investment technique and knowledge, operational controls and management. In the event of mismanagement of the fund and/or the management company, the NAV of the target fund, which invests into the fund would be affected negatively. Although the probability of such occurrence is minute, should the situation arise, Principal (S) will seek for an alternative collective investment scheme that is consistent with the objective of the target fund.

RISKS (CONTINUED)

All investment carries some form of risks. The potential key risks include but are not limited to the following:

Credit and default risk

Investments of the target fund may involve a certain degree of credit and default risk. Generally, credit and default risk is the risk of loss due to the counterparty's and/or issuer's non-payment or untimely payment of the investment amount as well as the returns on investment. Principal (S) aims to mitigate this risk by performing fundamental credit research and analysis to determine the creditworthiness of its counterparty and/or issuer.
