FUND MANAGER'S COMMENTS

We see the recent rise in yields in the Malaysian bond market a buying opportunity. With increasing protectionism globally, there is greater downside risk to global growth. As such, we continue to expect global interest rates to be low. Malaysia, as an economy that is dependent on global trade, looks to be impacted as well. Additionally, domestic demand in Malaysia is still slowing down. As such, we expect Bank Negara to cut Overnight Policy Rate by the first half of next year. We still expect some volatility in the short term but with MGS yields already up by 70 – 80 bps, we do not think yields will move up much more. Local demand especially from life insurance companies and pension funds will support the bond market with yields more attractive now. We believe the bond market will reflect fundamentals eventually with yields coming down to reflect slower growth. Therefore our strategy is to remain with a duration of around 6 years, while keeping the portfolio invested in higher grade and more liquid papers. We also note that credit conditions could deteriorate in a prolonged slow growth environment, which is why we prefer higher grade rated sukuk that have stronger financial standing.
